Al G. Field and Harry Shunk are at the head of the burnt cork entertainers, with Dock Quigley, Tommy Donnelly, Fairman, John Blackford and Billy Cawley as able assistants. There are a half dozen well-known ballad singers in the "first part," principal among them being Reese Prosser, whose sweet voice has often been heard here before; Paul La Lond, the basso; Matthew Keefe, the yodier and William E. Blamphlin, the English tenor. There are four big vaudeville acts in the olio of the show: The Magnani Family in a novel musical specialty; the Walton Brothers, five daring acrobats; the Parrento Troupe of pantomimists and the two Leigh Brothers, who are said to give a startling equilibrist exhibition. If all promises are fulfilled the show will be an attractive one from beginning to end. The usual minstrel parade will take place at noon to-day.

Beginning with a matinee this afternoon "East Lynne," one of the best liked of all emotional dramas, will hold the boards at the Park until Saturday night. This famous old play is being revived on an elaborate scale this season by J. F. Crosby, jr., who is featuring Miss Inez Forman as the leading woman of the company. Miss Forman is a young emotional actress who has had considerable experience in playing roles that call for intense acting, and should be quite capable of doing excellent work in the dual role of Lady Isabelle and Madam Vine. She is supported by what is understood to be a strong company, including John Dillon, the veteran comedian. "East Lynne" has always been a favorite play at the Park, and if well presented by Manager Crosby's company, will be sure to prove a strong drawing card for the rest of the week. x x x

During previous seasons the Grand has offered its patrons an occasional vaudeville tion-that is, a performance given by a gether and do not play separate "dates." There will be several big combinations of this kind on the road this season and all of them have been booked for the Grand, Manager Ziegler says. In addition to those old favorites, the Orpheum show, Hyde & Behman's, the Great Lafayette's company and the Empire road show, there to decide the winner. will be the Circle Theater show, from the Circle Music Hall, New York, Imro Fox's own company, and Nat Wills' "Sons of combination, which is really a big vaudeville entertainment. James O'Neill has at last secured a play that suits him. He never did care particularly for "The Manxman," in which he appeared last season and before his tour in the play ended it was said that he thoroughly detested the role he was acting. The company, which has been rehearsing about the grounds and sought refuge in the in Chicago for the last two weeks, opens its new season in this city. It is a big organization, with a chorus of many pretty girls and an excellent cast, that inciudes Richard Golden, Arthur Wooley, Charles W. XXX The Schuberts, who are becoming more Important factors in the American theatrical world with each new season, have just made public a list of their attractions for the next nine months. They are to have two European "Dolly Varden" companies, one to open in Paris in February and the other in London in October. "The Runaways" begins its tour of the larger cities of this country in Baltimore Sept. 21, and there are to be two road companies presenting "A Chinese Honeymoon." Both of these musical comedies will be seen in Indianapolis during the season.

Many newspaper writers on theatrical topics are leaving their old desks this season to become press agents for prominent attractions. The latest recruit is W. R. Antisdell, for many years dramatic editor of the Philadelphia Record, a scholarly writer and a man who is well versed in affairs of the stage. He has united himself with the Liebler & Co. forces and will look after the advance work of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," which is

AMUSING CONTESTS WOMEN'S

CERIES TO LAST A MONTH.

Racing Events Well Contested and Delivery Horses Stepped Like Grand Circuit Campaigners.

Members of the Retail Grocers' Association and their friends enjoyed themselves yesterday at the fair grounds in their annual picnic. The celebration was not confined to the grocers or their clerks, but several thousands of their patrons took advantage of the picnic and joined in the celebration. Few of the retail grocers opened their stores yesterday and only for the first hour or two. Then doors were locked and the grocer and his family in their best clothes hastened to the fair grounds. The roads leading from the city to the picnic grounds were kept dusty by a continuous procession of wagons and buggies.

The exercises of the day were to begin at 10 o'clock, but some delay was occasioned in not getting together those who had entered for the various contests. The basecal season at English's Opera house will ball game scheduled for the opening numrangements busied itself in getting the place in shape for the big crowd that began making its appearance shortly before noon. Many of those who came out early had taken the precaution to bring along

WOMEN'S CONTESTS. Although the races were interesting the humorous part of the programme came when the women's contests were given. In these events several young housewives saved money for their husbands by entering the events and winning enough groceries to stock their larders for a month. One little woman living in West Indianapolis managed to carry away several loaves of bread, fifty cakes of soap, several boxes of cereals and other articles. Of these events the string chewing contest was the funniest. The women were lined up in the race track facing the grand stand and each woman was given a string three feet long to which was attached a large gum drop. One end of the string was placed in the mouth of each contest-At the word "go" each woman began working her teeth, trying to get the gum drop to her lips without the use of her hands. This proved very tiresome for some of the younger women, who were inclined to keep their eyes on some of their friends in the crowd. When they smiled they would lose their hold on the string. Following this contest the girls were at home when they were given pans of water and a cake of soap and started on a lathermaking contest. One little housewife demurred from starting, saying that hard water was being used and she could not make lather with it. After she started, however, she soon found she was mistaken and after one and a half minutes work she was awarded first prize. She got fifty cakes of soap for the best lather maker. The women worked hardest when they attempted to kick a football. When most of them ran toward the rubber sphere and tried to kick it they almost invariably missed. There were eight entries in this

Time Wasted in Dealing.

The Little Woman was in the throes of the whist fever. Other epidemics come and go and leave their victims none the worse for their visitation, but whist is different. The whist habit has been observed to cause month's absence visiting different points in dissension and break up friendships, and it is even hinted that it precipitates more divorces than any other one cause except, perhaps, incompatibility. No serum has as yet been invented, and no complete recovery has ever been recorded. Now the Little Woman's husband did not play whist. However, he was firmly convinced that she was the dearest little woman on earth, although of late an alarming change had come over her. His one-time comfortable and orderly home was eternally in confusion because the housewife belonged to six morning whist clubs. Her Puritan training prevented her from belonging to a seventh. In the intervals between games she sat around in a negligee with her nose buried in little red morocco covered books, "The Way to Play," "Whist's Gist," etc. Every day about luncheon time the telephone bell rang and some of the Little Woman's friends called her afternoon. Every few weeks the Little Woman would pack up her trunks and hie herself to some far-distant city to play in tournaments and win trophies. AMERICAN BEAUTY CORSETS IN ORDER TO INTRODUCE TO OUR CUSTOMERS THE CELEBRATED. . . .

We have inaugurated the most unique and startling innovation in the way of a voting contest that has ever been offered: We propose to give the above named high-grade Piano absolutely free to the lady or girl sending the greatest number of ladies to our Corset Department to inquire for and investigate the merits of American Beauty Corsets before Nov. 14, 1903.

In addition to the above Capital Prize we offer a number of valuable Special Consolation Prizes. To the contestant having the greatest number of votes and in like manner to all those in regular order of number of votes received we will give 100 other prizes. This is a bona fide offer made to popularize American Beauty Corsets in our store and our reputation is a guarantee that we carry out every promise made. The prizes will be on exhibition in our Corset Department during the entire contest. This is the easiest and most popular plan ever offered by which to obtain a first-class guaranteed plano without one cent of expense to the contestants. It will cost you nothing to enter, and will cost your friends absolutely nothing to vote for you. You will not even be asked to buy a corset before entering as a contestant. All we want is to have your triends to whom you give the ballots ask for and examine the American Beauty Corsets so that they will know what to call for at any future time when they may desire to purchase. Positively all that is necessary for a lady to do before casting her vote for a contestant is to visit our Corset Department and to call for and examine an American Beauty Corset. The ballots and all instructions necessary for the use of contestants will be furnished free upon application at our Corset Department. A competent demonstrator will be present to give you any information called for. All ballots will be deposited by the voter in a ballot-box provided for that purpose. The ballot-box is securely sealed and the seals will not be broken until the close of the contest. The box will be opened and the votes counted in view of all contestants by a committee representing the daily newspapers of Indianapolis. Contest closes at 8 o'clock p. m., Nov. 14, 1903. "But it is good to get back to Indianapolis," said he last night, as he sat in his study preparing a sermon for Sun-day morning. "There is no better place to live than Indiana. Our farmers are prosperous and our cities are alive and pro gressive. What better can any one ask?" "I spent most of my vacation at Spencer and Spirit Lake, Ia. The land in that vicinity is suffering the second year from too much rain. But, in spite of these un-favorable conditions, the country is rich and the people are fairly prosperous. Ten years ago this land could have been bought for $5 and $10 an acre. Now it is held at $60 and $70. There is so much good land in Alva T. Wysong. The ceremony was read by the Rev. Peter Seuel, the pastor of the church, and the music played by Prof. William Siessonsop. The church was prettily decorated in green and white for the ceremony. The guests were seated by the mony. The guests were seated by the ushers, Mr. Carl Piel, Mr. Alfred and Elmer of the corn.

Things in True Kentucky Style. A reproduction of the ante-bellum days in Kentucky was given last night at a wedding solemnized at the home of Mr. Case, Fletcher avenue and Sherman avenue. George Smith, a native of the Bluegrass State, married Miss Elizabeth Miller. Mr. case, at whose home the marriage was held, was at one time a resident of Ken-

In view of the fact that there were Kentuckians prominent in the ceremony, Dr. A. E. Buchanan and wife and several friends rode to the home of Mr. Case on horseback and groom. There were about thirty other guests attending and the reception which followed the ceremony was one that brought pleasant remembrances to the for-Smith will go to housekeeping immediately der-arm seams. Extensions at the waist line in the under-arm seams are laid in inverted plaits to give extra fullness to the skirt. The sleeves are plain, in bishop style, and gathered into straight cuffs and the yoke is finished with a standing collar. When the sailor collar is desired it is arranged over the frock, on indicated lines, and is finished with a band of embroidery that is extended at the front to give a stole suggestion. At the waist is a narrow belt that can be of the material or of the trimming as may be preferred. The quantity of material required for the medium size (8 years) is 5½ yards 27 inches wide, 3½ yards 44 inches wide or 3 yards 52
